DIRECTORY OF PREGNANCY AND CHILD HEALTH SERVICES

Directory of Pregnancy and Child Health Services

INTRODUCTION

This brochure is a directory of names, addresses, and telephone numbers of public and private agencies that provide services and financial aid.

The directory lists the “area served,” so you can get information and help from places located close to where you live. The agencies are listed alphabetically with statewide and national resources at the bottom of the category’s list.

By calling or visiting the agencies and offices, you can find out about the kinds of assistance available to help you through your pregnancy, childbirth, and while you are raising your child.

You should also know and understand that:

- The father of your child is liable to assist in the support of his child.
- The law permits adoptive parents to pay costs of prenatal care, childbirth, and neonatal care.

TAKING CARE OF YOUR BABY BEFORE AND AFTER IT IS BORN

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITIES

The father of your child has a legal duty to support his child. That duty can include child support payments and health insurance.

Your child may be eligible through his or her father for social security, pension, veterans, or disability benefits. He or she may have rights of inheritance or life insurance benefits. In addition, the child will know his or her medical history.

Paternity can be established in 3 ways:

1. When a woman is married at the time of conception or between conception and birth, her husband will be listed as the father; or
2. The father and mother can sign a notarized paternity affidavit or a notarized subsequent marriage affidavit; or
3. A court can determine that he is the father.

More information concerning paternity establishment may be obtained by contacting the Idaho CareLine by phone by dialing 2-1-1 or by accessing www.idahocareline.org on the net.

ADOPTION

Women and couples facing an untimely pregnancy who choose not to assume the full responsibilities of parenthood have another option - adoption. There is a great demand for adoption, and many babies are placed as soon as the child is surrendered.

Counseling and support services are a key part of adoption and are available from a variety of adoption agencies and parent support groups across the state. This directory includes a list of adoption agencies in your county.

There are many ways to adopt - through a public or private agency or through a private attorney. For more information, call Idaho CareLine 2-1-1, or visit www.idahocareline.org. You can also call your Regional Health and Welfare office or a private adoption agency listed in this brochure.

IDAHO SAFE HAVEN

If you are pregnant and unable to keep your baby, there is help. The Idaho Legislature passed a law called the "Idaho Safe Haven Act."

Once your baby is born, you can take your baby to a Safe Haven. The following people or places are Safe Havens:

- Hospitals and clinics;
- Doctors and doctor's offices;
- Nurse practitioners;
- Physician's assistants;
- Ambulance personnel; or
- Fire stations.

One of these health care professionals will accept your baby from you, care for it, and start the process of finding the baby a home.

If you take your baby to a Safe Haven, you will not get into trouble with the law as long as it is within 30 days of birth, and there are no signs that anyone has hurt the child. The only thing you must do is physically hand the baby to someone at the Safe Haven. DO NOT leave the baby outside the hospital or a doctor's office. Take the baby inside and give it to someone. They will know what to do.

All information about you and your baby will be confidential. You do not have to give your name or any other personal information. You may be asked some questions about the baby's birth and health. It is your decision whether or not you answer those questions.

It is important for your baby to have a family right away. If you change your mind and want your baby back, you don't have very long to let someone know and you must file a claim with the Bureau of Vital Records and Health Statistics. Forms are available at 450 W. State in Boise and at any county clerk's office. Don't wait too long; there is not much time.

If you make a claim before the court has terminated parental rights, the court has an opportunity to delay the termination of your parental rights for up to 60 days. The court may ask for a DNA test to make sure you are the baby's mother or father. Someone will come to talk to you to figure out if you can provide a safe home for your baby.

STATE HEALTH CARE PROGRAMS

You may qualify for financial help for prenatal, childbirth, and neonatal care, depending on your income. If you qualify, the state's medical assistance services will pay or help pay the cost of doctor, clinic, hospital, and other related medical expenses to help you with prenatal care, childbirth delivery services, and care for your newborn baby.

You can apply for this financial help at your local office of the Department of Health and Welfare. These offices can also tell you which providers, doctors, and hospitals participate in Healthy Connections and can answer your questions about other available benefits.

Brochures explaining Healthy Connections are available. Call the CareLine by simply dialing 2-1-1 or 1-800-926-2588, or visit www.idahocareline.org

AGENCIES THAT CAN ASSIST YOU

The information on service providers contained in this brochure can change; up-to-date information can also be accessed on Idaho's CareLine by dialing 2-1-1 or 1-800-926-2588, or by visiting www.idahocareline.org. The 2-1-1 Idaho CareLine is an information and referral service that provides free referrals to private, public, and non-profit, health-related services. This statewide, confidential service uses an extensive, up-to-date database to connect people to a wide range of agencies, support groups, and programs, including those who provide services to pregnant women, infants, and children. Some of the services included are:
